UNIT 3: WEEK 1
XYB STUDIO

We made a part of a larger quilt as a group.

The brief was to visualise our feelings about CSM as an institution.

We had a larger piece of blue material so we decided we could all make a fish each and put it in the larger pond. We all come from disparate places, but are in one place together.

There is a diverse range of cultures, genders, interests at CSM, and our fish would represent this.

As we were making we thought a pond is natural and open, but we felt CSM as an institution is and isn't this so we made it a fish tank instead. Referencing being looked at, reflecting the building we study in, the room we study in, the slightly false environment we are in for a couple of years before swimming off into the big sea.

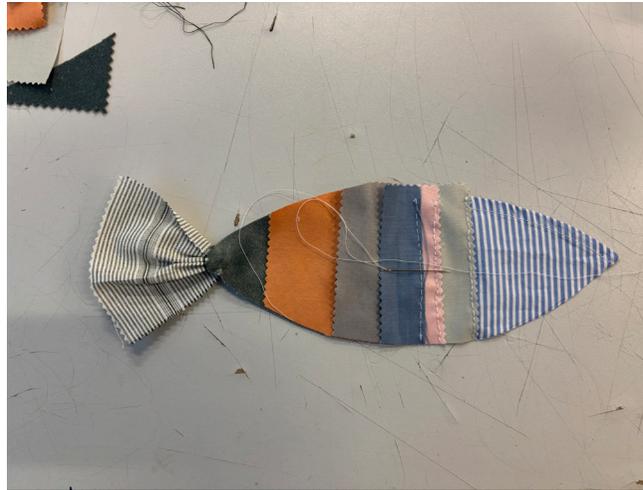

When we held out fish up they looked like ties, a nice nod to the bureaucratic nature of an art institution.
